

Podiatrist encourages students: Crown Point podiatrist Michael Nirenberg recently spoke to Indiana University students about careers in podiatric medicine. Professor Atilla Tuncay, a health professions adviser for the university, arranged Nirenberg's visit with the students. Nirenberg, an American Podiatric Medical Association student mentor, helps educate young people on the benefits of choosing to become podiatrists. With the population aging and most Americans living longer, the need for more podiatrists is greater than ever, Nirenberg told the students.